Your screenshots, turned into action.

THE PROBLEM

3,353

screenshots on my Desktop, right now.

Every one was something I meant to do.

THE PROBLEM

We screenshot what we mean to do. Then we never do it.

WHY IT MATTERS

56%

of Gen Z have lost or mixed up information because of screenshot clutter.

1,800+

screenshots the average American takes in a year. That’s five a day.

THE SOLUTION

How might we...

turn the screenshots people already take into the plans they meant to make, without changing a single habit?

THE SOLUTION

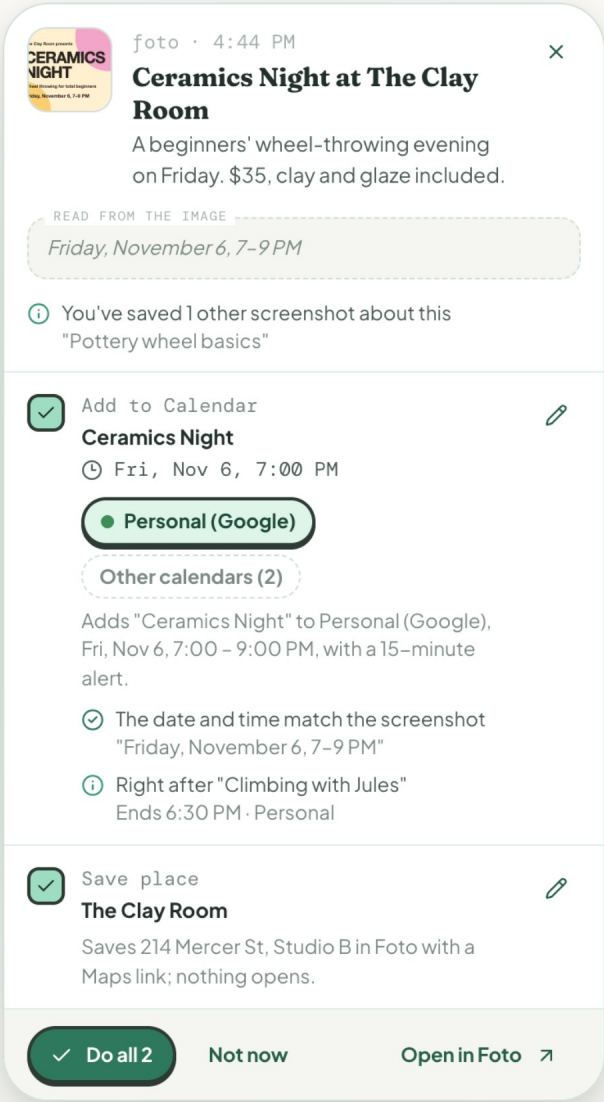

meet foto.

A quiet helper for everything you screenshot.

Reads every screenshot you take

Checks your calendar before it acts

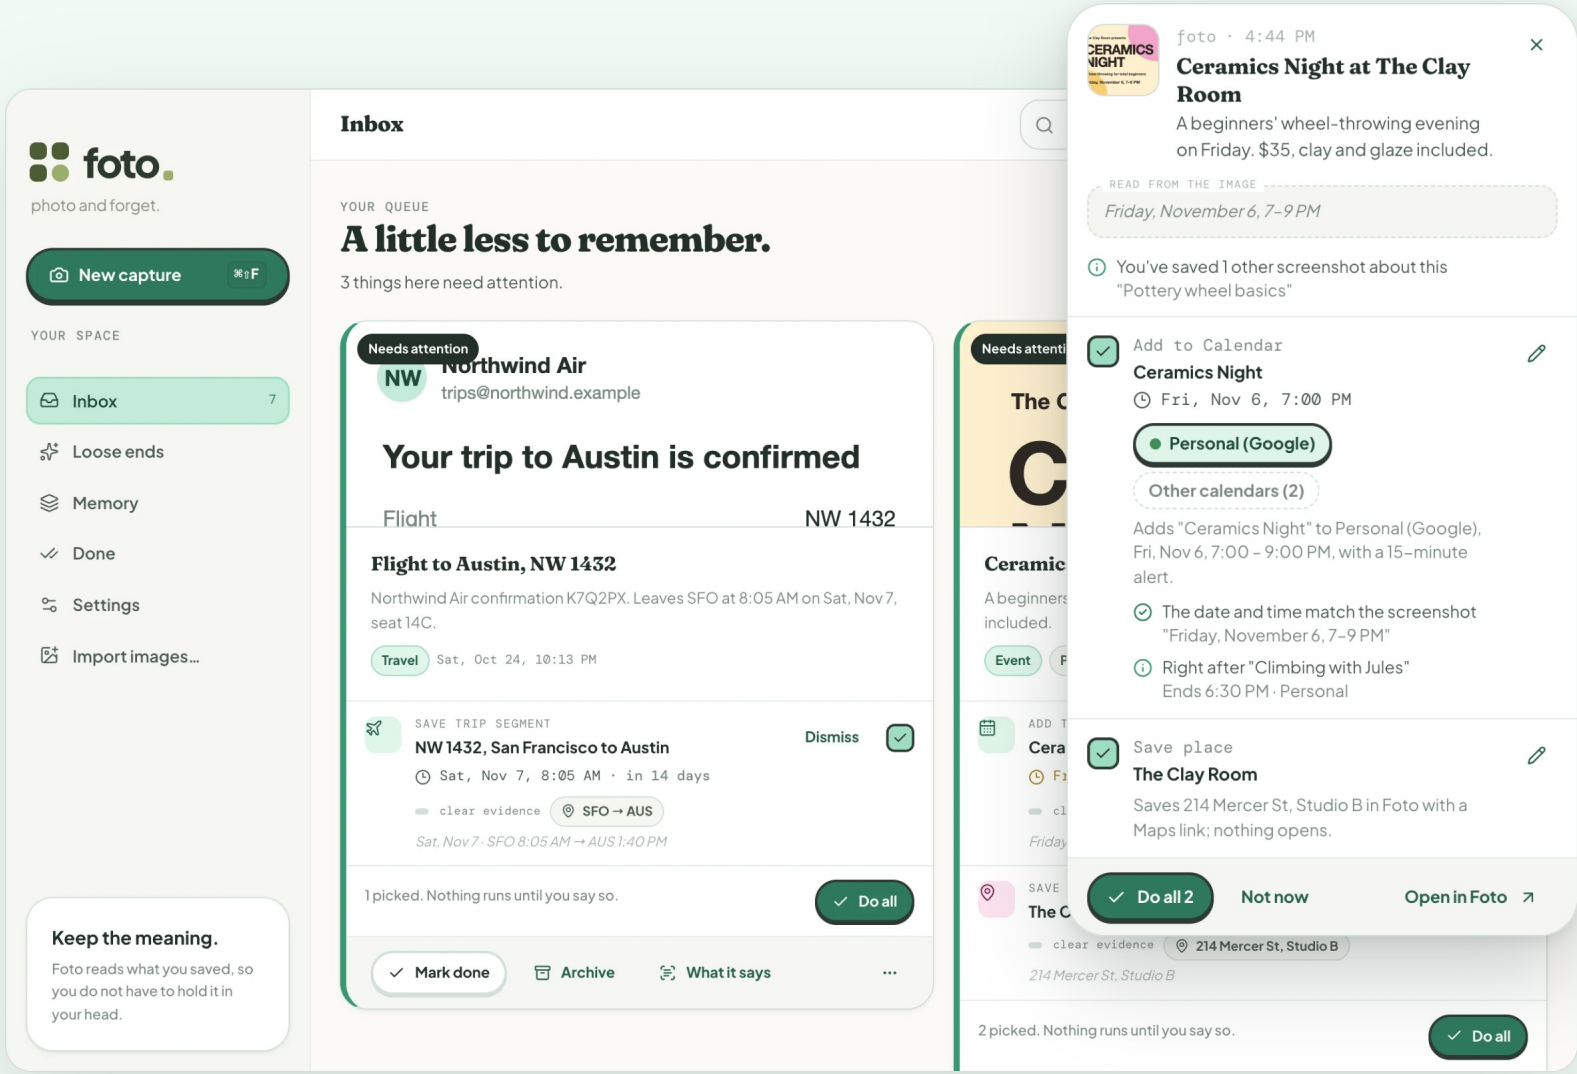

Adds it in one tap, with undo

THE DEMO

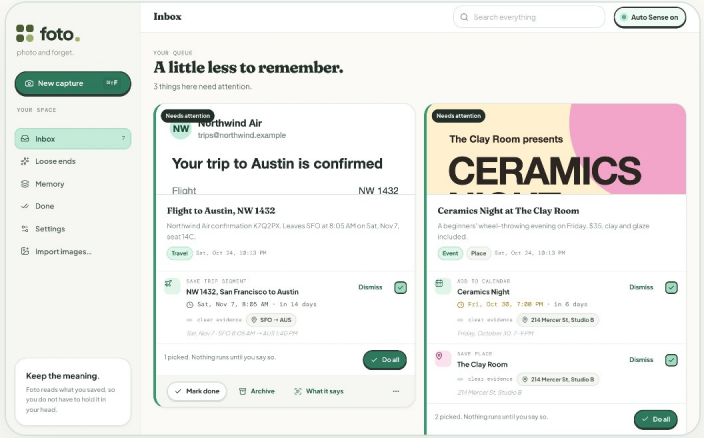

Screenshot it. Foto takes it from there.

SYSTEM ARCHITECTURE

How a screenshot becomes a calendar event

01
Snap
Auto Sense notices each new screenshot.

→

02
Read
Apple Vision reads the text, right on your Mac.

→

03
Understand
Claude works out what it is, with no tools.

04
Check
Looks for clashes on your calendars, on device.

→

05
Act
Adds it to Google Calendar, checks it landed, keeps an undo.

TOUCH AND VOICE

Do it

An ink outline and a hard shadow mark everything you can press. Static content gets a hairline.

"Added Dentist to your calendar."

Names what happened and where. Never claims a result it didn't check.

WHO IT'S FOR

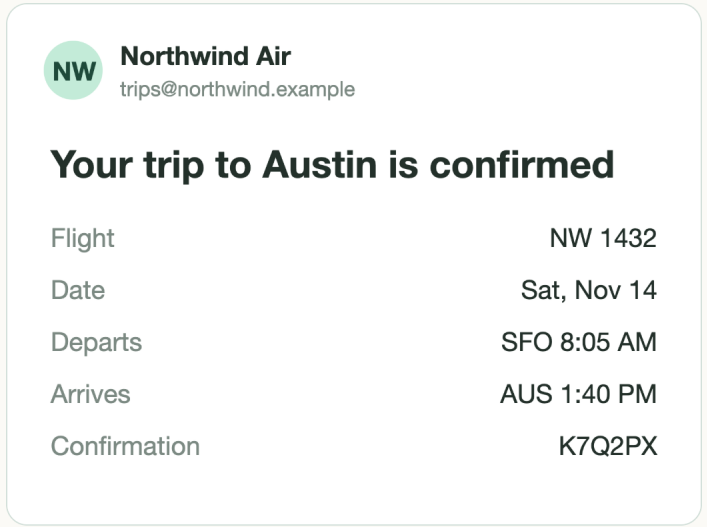

Built for people who live in screenshots

Starting on campus, where Gen Z saves 650 screenshots on average.

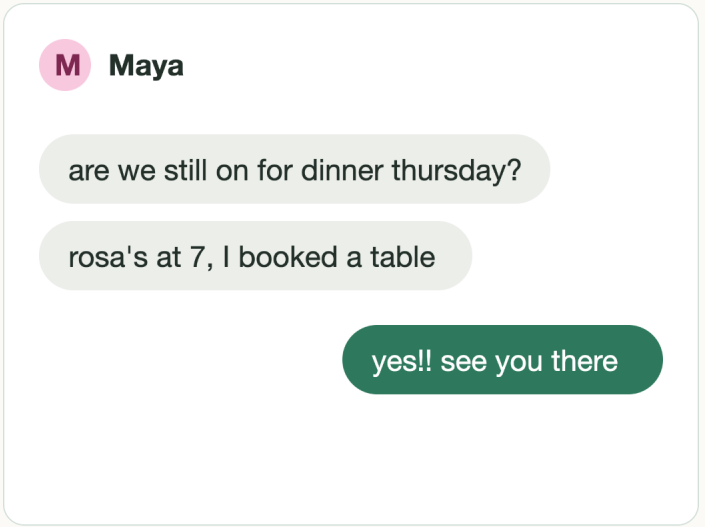

Students

Club flyers, syllabus deadlines, hackathons and office hours.

Young professionals

Invites, flights, confirmations and receipts.

Friends making plans

Dinners and trips decided in group chats.
